

Apple Story

Once upon a time there lived a family of red apples. There was Papa Apple (he was the biggest apple). Mamma Apple (she was a medium sized apple). Brother Apple and little sister Apple (they were the smallest apples.)

They were a happy family that had fun together. They also had rules for their family. But Papa Apple #1 rule was---Never, ever, ever, never, ever, never go to sleep around any worms. Little sister apple listens and repeats rule. Brother Apple repeats making an annoyed face.

One day Brother Apple was hanging out in a tree singing when a worm comes along. Herman is the worm's name. They began playing chase and hide and go seek. Soon Brother Apple was tired. He asks the worm if he eats apples. The worm says no way he is a bug-eating worm. So Brother Apple says he's going to take a nap and they will finish playing when he gets up.

When Brother Apple wakes up he is horrified to find the worm inside him eating. Brother screams. The worm says I guess I lied. Brother Apple orders the worm to get out. The worm asks why he being so sensitive.

Brother Apple goes home and tells his dad. He shows him the hole. Papa Apple tells Brother Apple how he only gives him rules because he loves him. He doesn't give them to be mean, but to protect him. He then tells him how he has learned something's the hard way and didn't want brother and sister to make the same mistakes he made. (Papa Apple takes off his middle to reveal a hole. He lets brother know that he went to sleep around a worm when he was young and the worm ate a hole through him.)

Brother Apple tells him that he will listen to him from now on and asks his papa to help fix his hole.

The end.
